

Anne Councilll
Clinician for the Super Volunteer Clinic
2009

Anne Councilll began her horse career in Massachusetts showing and then breeding Morgans when she was 14 years old. In the early 70's she started to train professionally for the Morgan Show ring. In the early eighties, tired of going around in circles and the subjective nature of horse shows, she made a change from breed activities to open competition in driving and dressage and has never looked back.

She has competed successfully at the Advanced Level in combined driving and has trained and shown a succession of horses in combined driving, pleasure and dressage, both ridden and driven.

Anne became an ADS Dressage and Combined Driving judge in 1995, a Pleasure judge in 1997, a large R Pleasure judge in 2004 and is currently pursuing a TD's card.

She calls dressage a lifelong challenge and actively pursues both her own education and teaching dressage and driving to others, both individually and in a clinic format.

Anne moved to Pennsylvania in 2001 to a 118 acre farm now known as Driving in Birch Hollow in Stewartstown in southern York County. The farm is a great place to train having room for both an 80m and a 100m dressage ring, cones field, acres of room to drive and driver training available.
